Reading: How I changed my habits

Focus: reading a blog post about food and fitness habits: quantifiers, verb patterns, to + verb

I'm Mark, 35, and I work in an office in Berlin. Last year I decided to get fit because I was always tired.

Before, I ate too much fried food and not enough fruit or vegetables. I drank five cups of coffee a day, but not much water. I often ordered takeaways after work. I didn't do any exercise.

Now I eat a lot of vegetables and only a little meat. I drink two cups of coffee a day and a few glasses of water. I started jogging to sleep better and to have more energy. I also joined a gym to meet people, and I enjoy swimming there. I still love dessert, and I hate cooking after work. But I feel much healthier, and I lost six kilos in a year.
